Seth Williams receives death threat

By KERRY GILDEA

Collegian Staff Writer

Undergraduate Student Government President Seth Williams remained calm after receiving a phone message yesterday warning that he would be killed.

An unidentified person called the USG office at 203 HUB and asked to speak to Williams at 4:45 p.m. When outgoing USG business director James Marino told the caller Williams was not in and asked if he could take a message, the caller said, "Tell him he's going to die tonight," Marino said.

The caller, who Marino said was male, hung up after making the statement. The caller sounded very upset, Marino noted, adding he did not think it was a prank call.

"It's something that you can't take seriously but you have to take seriously," Marino said, adding, "Although a lot of these people don't act on it, it is a threat against your life."

Assistant Director of University Police Services Tom Harmon said over the years threats of this type have occurred, but noted they cannot be ignored and must be taken seriously.

State College Bureau of Police Services and University Police Services were contacted, and as a result, a University officer attended last night's University Student Executive Council meeting. Williams is a USEC member.

University police officer Robert Bennett, who attended the meeting, said University police do not provide bodyguard services. Bennett said he attended the meeting at USG Vice President Amy Manderino's request.

Williams said: "I hope this was just a hoax but you never know. ... Anything is possible and you have to take all precautions that are necessary. What is to be is to be, but I'm just going to continue to do what I think is right."

He said he received some threatening calls when he was Black Caucus president and also hate mail -- one letter as recent as Wednesday.

In one section of the letter he received Wednesday, the writer, who was identified as a town resident and University graduate, criticized Williams for his actions and said he should resign as USG president. Williams did not speculate if the letter was connected with the phone call but also mentioned fliers that circulated throughout campus Tuesday with his picture stating that WASP-O-PHOBIA Has No Place at Penn State."
